

Biography – David Horning

Combining 8 years of comedy with 6 years of speaking, David Horning is on a mission to prepare teams for the shifting workplace of the 21st century. He has entertained and inspired audiences to use humor as a tool to adapt to change, relieve stress, engage teams, spark creative collaboration, and improve productivity with programs that turn traditional leadership on its head. He is the founder of Water Cooler Comedy, a company offering corporate comedy shows, keynote presentations, training programs, and leadership consulting.

In addition to speaking, David continues to perform stand-up, has been featured in The New York Comedy Festival, hosts a podcast called “You Can’t Laugh At That” featuring guests ranging from comedians, to humor researchers, to CEOs in order to explore the ins and outs of humor theory, stand-up comedy, joke writing, and humor in the workplace. He has appeared as a guest expert on leadership and HR podcasts such as HR After Dark, The Chad And Cheese Podcast, The Indigo Podcast, and others. He is currently working on his first book. Visit watercoolercomedy.org to learn more.